"I feel completely isolated, people talking about me as being cursed"

An infertile woman

In many cultures, childless women suffer discrimination, stigma and ostracism.

"Merck More than a Mother" Campaign aims to open a dialogue with Policy makers, Parliament Members, Governments, Academia, Healthcare Providers and Media to define interventions to reduce the stigma and social suffering of infertile women in Africa through empowering them socially and economically.

It also aims to improve access to regulated, effective and safe fertility care through providing education and training for Embryologists, supporting ART policies and improve access to awareness about infertility prevention & management and male infertility across the continent.
